Today we're going to speak about pollution, air pollution. It's one of the biggest problems in Malaysia and it has yet to be overcome.

Most Malaysians are concerned about this matter, but it just keeps on expanding. Recently Malaysia faced a massive Haze problem which was caused by open burning in Indonesia. Open burning is when they burn a large amount in the open air causing a lot of smoke to come out. The cost of clearing land is much cheaper when you burn it rather than cutting the trees down. So then the wind blows all the haze to Malaysia causing a lot of air pollution and difficulties. However we can't put the blame completely on Indonesia as some of the companies involved are Malaysian companies as well.

Factories too, in Malaysia are also causing a lot of air pollution and I feel this will be very hard to overcome.

The Government are implementing a number of ways to deal with the pollution problem including improving public transport and encouraging car-pooling and they have a ban on open burning, implementing into law was easy, but making people follow the law is harder. So I suggest that heavier fines should be given to people who break that law.

They also encourage recycling in society with campaigns as for alternative power sources, as for alternative energy sources used in Malaysia, solar energy, turbines, palm oil and sugar-cane fuel and even bio-mass. This is to save our natural resources.
